TRIED BY FIRE

A.W. Pink (1886-1952)

*“But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me
I shall come forth as gold.”—Job 23:10*

JOB here corrects himself. In the beginning of the chapter, we find him saying, “Even today is my complaint bitter: my stroke is heavier than my groaning” (23:1-2). Poor Job felt that his lot was unbearable. But he recovers himself. He checks his hasty outburst and revises his impetuous<sup>1</sup> decision. How often we all have to correct ourselves! Only One has ever walked this earth Who never had occasion to do so.

Job here comforts himself. He could not fathom the mysteries of providence,<sup>2</sup> but God knew the way he took. Job had diligently sought the calming presence of God, but for a time in vain. “Behold, I go forward, but he is not there; and backward, but I cannot perceive him: On the left hand, where he doth work, but I cannot behold him: he hideth himself on the right hand, that I cannot see him” (23:8-9). But he consoled himself with this blessed fact: “Though I cannot see God, what is a thousand times better, He can see me.” “He knoweth” —[the] One above is neither unmindful nor indifferent to our lot. If He notices the fall of a sparrow, if He counts the hairs of our heads, of course, “He knows” the way that I take.

Job here enunciates a noble view of life. How splendidly optimistic he was! He did not allow his afflictions to turn him into a skeptic. He did not permit the sore trials and troubles through which he was passing to overwhelm him. He looked at the bright side of the dark cloud—God’s side, hidden from sense and reason. He took a long view of life. He looked beyond the immediate “fiery trials” and said that the outcome would be gold refined.

“But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me I shall come forth as gold.” Three great truths are expressed here. Let us briefly consider each separately.

1. DIVINE KNOWLEDGE OF MY LIFE: “He knoweth the way that I take.” The omniscience<sup>3</sup> of God is one of the wondrous attributes of Deity. “For his eyes are upon the ways of man, and he seeth all his goings” (Job 34:21). “The eyes of the LORD are in every place, beholding the evil and the good” (Pro 15:3). Spurgeon<sup>4</sup> said, “One of the greatest tests of experimental religion is, What is my relationship to God’s omniscience?” What is your relationship to it, dear reader? How does it affect you? Does it distress or comfort you? Do you shrink from the thought of God knowing all about your way—perhaps, a lying, selfish, hypocritical way? To the sinner, this is a terrible thought. He denies it, or if not, he seeks to forget it. But to the Christian, here is real comfort. How cheering to remember that my Father knows all about my trials, my difficulties, my sorrows, my efforts to glorify Him. Precious truth for those in Christ, harrowing<sup>5</sup> thought for all out of Christ, that the way I am taking is fully known to and observed by God.

“He knoweth the way that I take.” Men did not know the way that Job took. He was grievously misunderstood, and for one with a sensitive temperament to be misunderstood is a sore trial. His very friends thought he was a hypocrite. They believed he was a great sinner and being punished by God. Job knew that he was an unworthy saint, but not a hypocrite. He appealed against their censorious<sup>6</sup> verdict. “He knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me I shall come forth as gold.” Here is instruction for us when [we are] like circumstanced. Fellow believers, your fellow men, yes, and your fellow Christians, may misunderstand you and misinterpret God’s dealing with you; but console yourself with the blessed fact that the omniscient One knoweth.

“He knoweth the way that I take.” In the fullest sense of the word, Job himself did not know the way that he took, nor do any of us. Life is profoundly mysterious, and the passing of the years offers no solution. Nor does philosophizing help us. Human volition<sup>7</sup> is a strange enigma.<sup>8</sup> Consciousness bears witness that we are more than automatons.<sup>9</sup> We exercise the power of choice in every move we make. Yet it is plain that our freedom is not absolute. There are forces

brought to bear upon us, both good and evil, which are beyond our power to resist. Both heredity and environment exercise powerful influences upon us. Our surroundings and circumstances are factors that cannot be ignored. And what of providence, which “shapes our destinies”? Ah, how little do we know the way that we “take.” Said the prophet, “O LORD, I know that the way of man is not in himself: it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps” (Jer 10:23). Here we enter the realm of mystery, and it is idle to deny it. Better far to acknowledge with the wise man, “Man’s goings are of the LORD; how can a man then understand his own way?” (Pro 20:24).

In the narrower sense of the term, Job did know the way that he took. What that “way” was he tells us in the next two verses. “My foot hath held his steps, his way have I kept, and not declined. Neither have I gone back from the commandment of his lips; I have esteemed the words of his mouth more than my necessary food” (Job 23:11-12). The way Job chose was the best way, the scriptural way, God’s way—“his way.”

What do you think of that way, dear reader? Was it not a grand selection? Ah, not only “patient,” but wise Job! Have you made a similar choice? Can you say, “My foot hath held his steps, his way have I kept, and not declined” (23:11)? If you can, praise Him for His enabling grace. If you cannot, confess with shame your failure to appropriate His all-sufficient grace. Get down on your knees at once, and unbosom<sup>10</sup> yourself to God. Hide and keep back nothing. Remember it is written, “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness” (1Jo 1:9). Does not verse 12 explain your failure, my failure, dear reader? Is it not because we have not trembled before God’s commandments and because we have so lightly esteemed His Word that we have “declined” from His way? Then let us, even now and daily, seek grace from on high to heed His commandments and hide His Word in our hearts.

“He knoweth the way that I take.” Which way are you taking—the narrow way that leadeth unto life or the broad road that leadeth to destruction? Make certain on this point, dear friend. Scripture declares, “So every one of us shall give account of himself to God” (Rom 14:12). But you need not be deceived or uncertain. The Lord declared, “I am the way” (Joh 14:6).

2. DIVINE TESTING: “When he hath tried me.” “The fining pot is for silver, and the furnace for gold: but the LORD trieth the hearts” (Pro 17:3). This was God’s way with Israel of old, and it is His way with Christians now. Just before Israel entered Canaan, as Moses reviewed their history since leaving Egypt, he said, “And thou shalt remember all the way which the LORD thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no” (Deu 8:2). In the same way, God tries, tests, proves, humbles us.

“When he hath tried me.” If we realized this more, we should bear up better in the hour of affliction and be more patient under suffering. The daily irritations of life, the things that annoy so much—what is their meaning? Why are they permitted? Here is the answer: God is “trying” you! That is the explanation (in part, at least) of that disappointment, that crushing of your earthly hopes, that great loss—God was, is, testing you. God is trying your temper, your courage, your faith, your patience, your love, your fidelity.<sup>11</sup>

“When he hath tried me.” How frequently God’s saints see only Satan as the cause of their troubles. They regard the great enemy as responsible for much of their sufferings. But there is no comfort for the heart in this. We do not deny that the devil does bring about much that harasses us. But above Satan is the Lord Almighty! The devil cannot touch a hair of our heads without God’s permission; and when he is allowed to disturb and distract us, even then it is only God using him to “try” us. Let us learn then, to look beyond all secondary causes and instruments to that One Who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will (Eph 1:11). This is what Job did.

In the opening chapter of the book that bears [Job’s] name, we find Satan obtaining permission to afflict God’s servant. He used the Sabians to destroy Job’s herds (Job 1:15); he sent the Chaldeans to slay his servants (1:17); he caused a great wind to kill his children (1:19). And what was Job’s response? This: he exclaimed, “The LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD” (1:21). Job looked beyond the human agents, beyond Satan who employed them, to the Lord Who controlleth all. He realized that it was the Lord trying him. We get the same thing in the New Testament. To the suffering saints at Smyrna John wrote, “Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer; behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried” (Rev 2:10). Their being cast into prison was simply God “trying” them.

How much we lose by forgetting this! What a stay for the trouble-tossed heart to know that no matter what form the testing may take, no matter what the agent that annoys, it is God Who is “trying” His children. What a perfect example the Savior sets us! When He was approached in the garden, and Peter drew his sword and cut off the ear of Malchus, the Savior said, “The cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?” (Joh 18:11). Men were about to vent their awful rage upon Him, the serpent would bruise His heel, but He looks above and beyond them. Dear reader, no matter how bitter its contents (infinitely less than that which the Savior drained), let us accept the cup as from the Father’s hand.

In some moods, we are apt to question the wisdom and right of God to try us. So often we murmur at His dispensations.<sup>12</sup> Why should God lay such an intolerable burden upon me? Why should others be spared their loved ones, and mine taken? Why should health and strength, perhaps the gift of sight, be denied me? The first answer to all such questions is, “O man, who art thou that repliest against God?” (Rom 9:20)! It is wicked insubordination for any creature to call into question the dealings of the great Creator. “Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?” (Rom 9:20). How earnestly each of us needs to cry unto God that His grace may silence our rebellious lips and still the tempest within our desperately wicked hearts!

Again, in 1 Peter 4:12-13, we are told, “Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ’s sufferings: that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.” The same thoughts are expressed here as in the previous passage. There is a needs-be<sup>13</sup> for our “trials,” and therefore we are to think them not strange—we should expect them. And, too, there is again the blessed outlook of being richly recompensed at Christ’s return. Then, there is the added word that not only should we meet these trials with faith’s fortitude, but we should rejoice in them also, inasmuch as we are permitted to have fellowship in “the sufferings of Christ” (2Co 1:5). He, too, suffered: sufficient then, “for the disciple [to] be as his master” (Mat 10:24-25).

“When he hath tried me.” Dear Christian reader, there are no exceptions. God had only one Son without sin, but never one without sorrow. Sooner or later, in one form or another, trial—sore and heavy—will be our lot. “And sent Timothy, our brother...to establish you, and to comfort you concerning your faith: That no man should be moved by these afflictions: for yourselves know that we are appointed thereunto” (1Th 3:2-3). Again, it is written, “We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God” (Act 14:22). It has been so in every age. Abram was “tried,” tried severely. So, too, were Joseph, Jacob, Moses, David, Daniel, the Apostles, etc.

3. THE ULTIMATE ISSUE: “I shall come forth as gold.” Observe the tense here. Job did not imagine that he was pure gold already. “I shall come forth as gold,” he declared. He knew full well that there was yet much dross<sup>14</sup> in him. He did not boast that he was already perfect. Far from it. In the final chapter of his book, we find him saying, “I abhor myself” (42:6). And well he might; and well may we. As we discover that in our flesh there dwelleth “no good thing,” as we examine ourselves and our ways in the light of God’s Word and behold our innumerable failures, as we think of our countless sins, both of omission and commission—good reason have we for abhorring ourselves. Ah, Christian reader, there is much dross about us. But it will not ever be thus.

“I shall come forth as gold.” Job did not say, “When he hath tried me I may come forth as gold,” or “I hope to come forth as gold,” but with full confidence and positive assurance he declared, “I shall come forth as gold.” But how did he know this? How can we be sure of the happy issue? Because the divine purpose cannot fail. He that hath begun a good work in us “will finish it” (Phi 1:6). How can we be sure of the happy issue? Because the divine promise is sure: “The LORD will perfect that which concerneth me” (Psa 138:8). Then, be of good cheer, tried and troubled one! The process may be unpleasant and painful, but the issue is charming and sure.

“I shall come forth as gold.” This was said by one who knew affliction and sorrow as few among the sons of men have known them. Yet despite his fiery trials, he was optimistic. Let, then, this triumphant language be ours. “I shall come forth as gold” is not the language of carnal boasting, but the confidence of one whose mind was stayed upon God. There will be no credit to our account—the glory will all belong to the divine Refiner (Jam 1:12).

For the present, there remain two things: first, love is the divine thermometer while we are in the crucible of testing—“And he shall sit [the patience of divine grace] as a refiner and purifier of silver...” (Mal 3:3). Second, the Lord Himself is with us in the fiery furnace, as He was with the three young Hebrews (Dan 3:25). For the future this is sure: the most wonderful thing in heaven will not be the golden street or the golden harps, but golden souls on which is stamped the image of God—predestinated “to be conformed to the image of his Son” (Rom 8:29)! Praise God for such a glorious prospect, such a victorious issue, such a marvelous goal!

Christian! Your present afflictions are not great if compared with the afflictions and torments of many of the damned, who, when they were in this world, never sinned at so high a rate as you have done! There are many now in hell who never sinned against such clear light as you have done, nor against such special love as you have done, nor against such precious mercies as you have done! Certainly, there are many now a-roaring in everlasting burnings who never sinned as you have done!

Whose pains are without intermission of mitigation;<sup>15</sup> who have weeping served for the first course, gnashing of teeth for the second course, the gnawing worm for the third course, and intolerable pain for the fourth course!

Yet the pain of the body is the least part of pain. The very soul of sorrow and pain is the soul's sorrow and pain! The everlasting alienation and separation from God is served for the fifth course!

Ah, Christian! How can you seriously think on these things and not lay your hand upon your mouth, even when you are under the greatest temporal<sup>16</sup> sufferings? Your sins have been far greater than many of those who are now in hell, and your “great” afflictions are but a fleabite compared to theirs! Therefore, hush your murmuring and be silent before the Lord!

CHEER UP, MY DEAR FRIENDS!

Charles H. Spurgeon (1834-1892)

“And he set the priests in their charges, and encouraged them to the service of the house of the LORD.”—2 Chronicles 35:2

JOSIAH, as you remember, in the early part of his reign set his face against the idolatries that prevailed to root them out of the land. He then bent his thoughts upon repairing and beautifying the temple. After that, it was his heart’s aim to restore the sacred services, to observe the solemn feasts, and to revive the worship of God after the due order, according to the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the Lord. Our text tells us something of the method with which he went to work; and it may well serve us as a model.

The first thing is to get every man into his proper place. The next thing is for every man to have a good spirit in his present place, so as to occupy it worthily. I will suppose, dear friends, that in the providence of God you are in your place, and that by the direction of God’s Spirit you have also sought and found the precise form of usefulness in which you ought to exercise yourself. Tonight, it shall not be my business to arrange you; but assuming that it is well for you to keep where you are, my object shall be to encourage you to do your work for your Lord without being cast down. I am hardly going to preach so much as to talk to different persons who are discouraged in the work of the Lord, that we may rouse them up, rally them round us, and encourage them to keep rank. And, first, I would speak a little,

I. TO THOSE WHO THINK THAT THEY CAN DO NOTHING. They will tell me that in such a sermon not a sentence can concern them: if I am to encourage men to the service of the house of the Lord, it will be in vain for them, as they can do nothing at all. Well, dear friends, you must not take that for granted. You must make quite sure that you cannot do anything before I may venture to speak to you as if it were a matter of fact—for sometimes there is a want<sup>1</sup> of way because there is a want of will. Though I do not go so far as to allege that this is your case, we know too well that “cannot” often does mean “will not,” and “not to have triumphed” may mean “you have not tried.” You have been so discouraged that you have excused yourself for inaction, and your inaction has grown into indolence.<sup>2</sup> If a man under the notion that he could not lift his right hand constantly kept it still, I should not wonder if after weeks and months it would become a matter of fact that he had not the power to use it. It might actually stiffen for no reason [except] he had not moved it. Do you not think that, before your muscles get rigid, it would be well to exercise them by attempting some kind of service? Especially you younger folk: if you do not work for the Lord almost as soon as you are converted, it will be very difficult afterwards to make you take to it. Aptitude,<sup>3</sup> I have often noticed, comes with employment;<sup>4</sup> through negligence and sloth, people become enervated<sup>5</sup> and helpless. You say that you cannot move your arm, and so you do not move it. Take heed, for by-and-by your pretence will become the parent of real powerlessness.

But I will take what you have said as being true. You are ill. The vigor you felt in the bright days of health fails you now. You have to suffer pain, weariness, and exhaustion. You are often detained at home; and home seems now to you a gloomy hospital all the day long, rather than a genial hostelry<sup>6</sup> when evening shadows fall. Little indeed, therefore, can you do—so little that you are apt to reckon it as nothing at all. The thought is a burden to you. You wish you could serve the Lord. How constantly you have dreamed of the pleasure since you have been denied the privilege! How willing your feet would be to run! How ready your hands would be to labor! How glad would your tongue be to testify! You envy those who are able, and you would fain<sup>7</sup> emulate and excel them—not indeed that you harbor ill will against them, but you devoutly wish that you could do some personal service in the cause of your Master.

Now, I want to encourage you first by reminding you that the Law of the Son of David is the same as the law of David himself; and you know the law of David about those that went to the battle. There were some that were lame and some that were otherwise incapable of action, and he left them with the baggage. “There,” he said, “you are very weary and ill. Stop in the camp. Take care of the tents and the ammunition, while we go and fight.” Now, it happened once on a time<sup>8</sup> that the men who went to fight claimed all the spoil. They said, “These people have done nothing! They have

been lying in the trenches. They shall not carry off a share of the booty.” But King David there and then made a law that they should share and share equally—those that were in the trenches and those that engaged in the fray.<sup>9</sup> “As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff: they shall part alike. And it was so from that day forward, that he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel unto this day” (1Sa 30:24-25). Nor is the Law of the Son of David less gracious. If by sickness you are detained at home—if for any other reason, such as age or infirmity, you are not able to enter into actual service—yet if you are a true soldier and would fight if you could and your heart is in it, you shall share even with the best and bravest of those who, clad in the panoply<sup>10</sup> of God, encounter and grapple with the adversary.

Brethren, you have no reason to envy—though you may admire to your heart’s content—all that are diligent and successful in the service of Christ. Let me remind you of a Law of the Kingdom of Heaven with which you are all familiar: “He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet’s reward” (Mat 10:41). In truth, it is a splendid appointment to be a servant of the Lord. David thought so, for you often read at the commencement of his psalms, “A prayer of David, the servant of God,” though you never read, “A prayer of David, the King of Israel”—for he thought more of being enrolled a servant of God than of being entitled a king of Israel. Health and strength, ability and opportunity, to fulfill a mission for the Master are much to be desired, but these are not always to be taken as reliable evidence of personal salvation. A man may preach admirably, and he may work marvels in the church, and yet not be a partaker of saving grace. Hence, when the disciples came back from preaching and said, “Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name,” the Lord said, “Notwithstanding in this rejoice not...but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven” (Luk 10:17, 20). Judas was amongst them; Judas cast out devils; Judas preached the Gospel—and yet Judas was a son of perdition<sup>11</sup> and is lost forever. Because you cannot do much, you must not infer that therefore you are not saved; for if you were to be among the chief of Christian workers, it would not prove that you were certainly a child of God. Do not fret, then, because you are shut out from the cheerful activities in which others share. For as long as your name is written in heaven and your heart truly follows after the Lord, you shall have an abundant recompense at the last great Day,<sup>12</sup> even though here you are doomed to be a sufferer rather than a worker.

But to me it seems more than possible that some of you, dear friends, whose minds are tinged with melancholy, have painted your own lot in deeper shades than the justice of the case deserves. Is your life indeed a dull routine, which, for lack of busy change and lively enterprise, leaves no record behind? Not so, methinks. “The rich relics of a well-spent hour”<sup>13</sup> do sometimes pour around your path a stream of light that cheers our eyes, though it may escape your notice. Are you patient under your sufferings? Do you try to keep the flesh in subjection, to govern your spirit, to refrain from murmuring, and to foster cheerfulness? That, my friend, is doing a great deal. I am sure that the holy serenity of a suffering child of God is one of the best sermons that can ever be preached in a family. A sick saint has often been more serviceable in a house than the most eloquent divine could have been. They see how sweetly you submit to the divine will, how patiently you can bear painful operations, how the Lord gives you songs in the night. Why, you are greatly useful. I have sometimes been called to visit bedridden persons who have been unable to rise for many, many years; and it has been within my knowledge that their influence has extended over whole parishes. They have been known as poor, pious women or as experienced Christian men, and many have gone to visit them. Christian ministers have said that they derived more benefit from sitting half-an-hour talking to poor, old Betsy than they did from all the books in their library, and yet Betsy said that she was doing nothing. Look at your case in that light, and you will see that you can praise God upon your bed and make your chamber to be as vocal for God as this pulpit ever can be.

Besides, dear friends, do you not think we frequently limit our estimate of serving God to the public exercises of the sanctuary and forget the strong claims that our Lord has upon our private fidelity and obedience? You say, “I cannot serve God,” when you cannot teach in the school or preach in the pulpit, when you are unable to sit on a committee or speak on a platform—as if these were the only forms of service to be taken into account. Do you not think that a mother nursing her baby is serving God? Do you not think that men and women going about their daily toil with patient industry discharging the duties of domestic life are serving God? If you think rightly, you will understand that they are. The servant sweeping the room, the mistress preparing the meal, the workman driving a nail, the merchant casting up his ledger, ought to do all in the service of God. Though, of course, it is very desirable that we should each and all have some definitely religious work before us, yet it is much better that we should hallow<sup>14</sup> our common handicraft and make our ordinary work chime with the melodies of a soul attuned for heaven. Let true religion be our life, and then our life will be true religion. That is how it ought to be. “Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks unto God and the Father by him” (Col 3:17). So, then, let the stream of your common life as it flows on—obscure, unobserved—be holy and courageous. You will find that while “they also serve who only stand and wait,” you shall not be neglected or overlooked who simply sit at Jesus’ feet and listen to His words when you can do no more. This is service done for Him that He can appreciate, complain who may.

Know, too, my dear sister, that by thy sorrows the Lord has drawn out thy sympathies. Thou, my dear brother, know that by the discipline that has chastened thee, thou hast learned to be a comforter. Say you, then, that you cannot do anything? I know a few secrets about you that you forget. You do not reckon yourself up as we reckon you. Did you not try to cheer a poor neighbor the other day by telling of the Lord’s goodness to you when you were very sick yourself? How started from your eye that tear most sacred shed for a fellow-creature’s pain? Is it not your habit, poor sufferer as you are, to let drop just a few words for your Master to others in a like condition whenever you can? You tell me that you cannot do anything. Why, dear hearts, the refreshing of God’s saints is one of the highest works in which anyone can be occupied! God will send prophets to His ser-vants at times when they need to be rebuked. If He wants to comfort them, He generally sends an angel to them; for that is angel’s work. Jesus Christ Himself, we read, had angels sent to minister to Him. When? Was it not in the garden of Gethsemane, when He was bowed down with sorrow? Comforting is not ordinary work: it is a kind of angelic work. “There appeared an angel unto him...strengthening him” (Luk 22:43). A prophet was sent to warn the Israelites of their sin; but when a Gideon was to be encouraged to go and fight for his country, it was the angel of the Lord that came to him. So I gather that comforting work is angel’s work.

You, dear, kind Christian men and women, who think that you are not able to do anything but to condole<sup>15</sup> or to console with cheery words some souls cast down and sore dismayed, you are fulfilling a most blessed office and doing work that many ministers find it difficult to perform. I have known some who have never known suffering or ill health, and when they try to comfort God’s weary people, they are dreadfully awkward over it. They are like elephants picking up pins: they can do it, but it is with a wonderful<sup>16</sup> effort! God’s tried people comfort each other con amore;<sup>17</sup> they take to the work as a fish to water. They understand the art of speaking a word in season to him that is weary; and when this is the case, they may not complain that they are doing nothing.

Yet, beloved, you who thought that you did nothing and now perceive that you are useful will, I hope, perceive that there is still a wider region into which you may advance. Breathe tonight the prayer of Jabez, who was more honorable than his brethren were because he was the child of his mother’s sorrow. And this was the prayer: “Oh that thou wouldest bless me indeed, and enlarge my coast” (1Ch 4:10)! Ask God to open up to you a larger region of usefulness, and He will do it. Now let me address a few words to another class of workers,

II. TO THOSE WHO THINK THAT THEY ARE LAID ASIDE. “Dear Sir,” says one, “I wish you would encourage me. I used to be useful once. At least, I was recognized as one of a band of men who worked together right heartily—but since I have changed my residence, I am unknown in the neighborhood where I am living, and I seem to have dropped out of the ranks. I have done little or nothing lately, and I feel uneasy about it. I wish that I could get to work.” My dear brother, I hope you will. But do not waste five minutes in thinking it over. These times need so much Christian effort that when a man asks me, “How shall I do work for Christ?” I am accustomed to say, “Go and do it.” “But what is the way to do it?” Start at once. Get at it, my brother. Do not be out of harness a minute. But suppose that you are obliged to desist awhile: do not let your interest in the cause of our Lord and Master decline. Some of the best of God’s workers have been laid aside for long periods. Moses was forty years in the desert, doing nothing. A greater than he, our blessed Savior Himself, was thirty years—I will not say doing nothing, but certainly doing no public work. When you are in a retired and inactive position, be preparing for the time when God brings you out again. If you are put away on the shelf, do not rust there; but pray the Master to brighten you up so that when He comes to use you again, you may be fully fitted for the work that He has in hand for you.

While you must be laid aside, I want you to do this: pray for others that are at work. Help them. Encourage them. Do not get into that peevish,<sup>18</sup> miserable frame of mind that grudges and undervalues other men’s works. Be not like the dog in the manger. Some people, when they cannot do anything themselves, do not like anybody else to be diligent and laborious. Say, “If I cannot help, I will never hinder, but I will cheer my brethren.”

Spend your time in prayer that you may be fit for the Master's use; and, meanwhile, be prompt in helping others. You remember that at the siege of Gibraltar, when the fleet surrounded it and determined to storm the old rock, the governor fired red-hot shot down upon the men of war. The enemy did not at all admire the governor's warm reception. Think how it was done. Here were gunners on the ramparts firing away, and every man in the garrison would have liked to do the same. What did those do who could not serve a gun? Why, they heated the shot; and that is what you must do. I am master gunner here generally: heat my shot for me, if you will. Keep the furnace going, so that when we do fire off a sermon, it may be red-hot through your earnest prayers. When you see your friends...standing out in the street working for God, if you cannot join them yet say, "Never mind: I will heat the shot for them. My prayers shall not be wanting, if I can contribute nothing else." That is counsel for you who are for a while laid on the shelf. Others there are who are much discouraged.

III. TO THOSE WHO HAVE BUT SMALL TALENT. "Oh," they say, "I wish I could serve Jesus Christ like Paul or like Whitefield<sup>19</sup>—that I could range the country through proclaiming His dear name and winning thousands of converts. But I am slow of speech and dull of thought, and what I attempt produces little or no effect." Well, brother, mind that you do what you can. Do you not recollect the parable of the men who had talents entrusted to them? I do not want to lay undue stress upon the fact that it was the man who had one talent who buried it. Yet why is he represented as doing so? I think it was not because the men of two and five talents do not sometimes bury theirs, but because the temptation lies most with the one talent people. They say, "What can I do? What is the use of me? I may be excused." That is the temptation.

Brother, do not be entangled in that snare. If your Lord has only given you one talent,<sup>20</sup> He does not expect you to make the same interest upon it as the man does with five; but, still, He does expect His interest. Therefore, do not wrap your talent in a napkin. It is but with strength imparted that any of us can serve Him. We have nothing to consecrate to Him but the gift we have first received from Him. You are weak. You feel it. But what says your God to you? "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the LORD of hosts" (Zec 4:6). He can make you useful though you have no extraordinary endowments. Grapeshot may do great execution, though it cannot compare with grenade or bombshell!

A sinner may be brought to Christ by the simple earnestness of a peasant or an artisan<sup>21</sup> without calling in the aid of a professor's learning or a preacher's eloquence. God can bless you far above what you think to be your capacity, for it is not a question of your ability but of His aid. You have no self-reliance, you tell me. Then take refuge in God, I entreat you, for you evidently want more of the divine succor.<sup>22</sup> Go and get it; it is to be had. He girds the weak with strength. "Even the youths shall faint and be weary...But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength" (Isa 40:31). Why, I think you are more likely to do good than if you had five talents, for now you will pray more and you will depend more upon God than you would have done if you had possessed strength of your own.

One other word—as you are not enriched with many talents, mind you economize those you have. Do you know how merchants and tradesmen who have only a small capital in business manage to compete with those who have larger means? They try to turn their money over every day. The costermonger<sup>23</sup> cannot afford to deal out his goods to gentlemen who will pay him in three months. Not he. He must get his ready money at the door and then go and buy another stock tomorrow morning and turn it over, or else he could not pick up his living with so small a capital. If you have only ninepence,<sup>24</sup> make it "nimble,"<sup>25</sup> and you will get as much profit out of a nimble ninepence as another out of a lazy crown.<sup>26</sup> Activity often makes up for lack of ability. If you cannot get force by the weight of the ball, get it by the velocity with which it travels. A little man with one talent all ablaze may become a perfect nuisance to the devil and a champion for Christ. As for that great divine with his five talents, who marches on so sleepily, Satan can always overmatch him and win the day. If you can but turn over your one talent again and again, in the name of God, you may achieve great wonders. So I would encourage you in the work of the Lord. I would now have a word,

IV. TO WORKERS WHO ARE UNDER GREAT DIFFICULTIES. I have known the day when perplexities pleased me, dilemmas afforded me delight, and instead of declining a difficult task, I rather liked it. Even now, I enjoy puzzling over a problem and attempting what others decline. Nothing good in this world can be effected without difficulty. The biggest diamonds lie under heavy stones that sluggards cannot turn over. That which is easy to do is hardly worth doing. In the

face of difficulty, the man of ardent,<sup>27</sup> persevering spirit braces up his nerves, sharpens his wits, and brings all his powers into play to achieve an object that will reward his efforts. Have you great difficulties, dear friend? You are not the first worker for God who has had difficulties to encounter. Let us go back to Moses again. He was to bring Israel out of Egypt, but his path did not appear very plain. He must go before Pharaoh and issue God's command. Pharaoh looked him through when he said, "Let my people go" (Exo 5:1). The haughty monarch was greatly surprised to hear anybody, especially a Hebrew, talk like that; and so he bade him be gone. But Moses returns with, "Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go" (Exo 8:1); and his courage was not even then crowned with immediate success. There must be plague upon plague, plague upon plague, until at last, proud Pharaoh's heart was broken, the Israelites were saved from the hand of him that hated them—and Egypt was glad when they departed. This, however, was but the beginning of the mission of Moses. His was a life of difficulty—the meekest man, but the most provoked. Until he got to the top of Pisgah and his gracious Master kissed away his soul, the prophet of Horeb [was] never done with difficulties.

Any good thing, I say, especially any good thing done for God, must be surrounded with difficulties and resisted by adversaries. Look at Nehemiah, Ezra, Zerubbabel, and those that built Jerusalem the second time. These good men wrought zealously, but Sanballat and Tobiah were jeering, jesting, and trying to throw down the wall. If you build a city without difficulty, it is not Jerusalem—be sure of that. As soon as ever you begin working for God, you will find a great power working against you. If you encounter opposition, take it as a good sign. When our young men go to a provincial town to preach, and I want to know how they are getting on, after listening to their story, I ask, "Has somebody slandered you yet? Do the newspapers denounce you as a fool?" If they say no, I conclude that they are not getting on much.

If Christ's cause is prospering, the world will reproach the soul-winner. If you do damage to the devil's kingdom, he will roar at you. Should your course be smooth, it is because he says, "There is nothing to disturb me in that man's monotonous talk. I need not let fly the fiery dart of calumny<sup>28</sup> at him. He is a chip in the porridge;<sup>29</sup> I will let him alone." Such a man generally goes through life very comfortably. People say, "He is a quiet, inoffensive sort of man." We do not want such soldiers in the service of Christ. "What a disagreeable person!" said a king once of an officer whose sword rattled on the floor. "That sword of his is most offensive." "Sire," said the officer, "that is exactly what your majesty's enemies think." When ungodly persons say that we are troublesome, we are not broken-hearted at being out of their good looks. If the king's enemies think us troublesome, we reckon it to be high praise. When you, my dear brother, meet with opposition, encounter it with prayer. Exercise more faith. Antagonists ought never to hinder your going forward in the cause of Christ. Diamond must cut diamond. There is nothing so hard in this world but you can cut it with something harder. If you ask God to steel your soul up to the conquering point and to make your resolution like an adamant stone,<sup>30</sup> you can cut your way through an alp<sup>31</sup> of diamond in the service of your Lord and Master.

Let me inspirit<sup>32</sup> you in the face of assailants. The forces ranged against you might be stumbling blocks to fools, but they shall only prove a stimulus to men. One day your honor shall be the greater and your reward shall be the higher because of these adverse elements. Therefore, be brave and fear not, but advance in the strength of God.

Fain would I now speak a passing word of comfort to another class of workers,

V. TO THOSE THAT ARE NOT APPRECIATED. I am not going to say much because I have not much sympathy with them. Yet I know that the smallest slight chafes those who are overly sensitive. They murmur, "I do my best, and nobody thanks me." You think yourself a martyr and complain that you are misrepresented. Be it so, dear friend: That was your Master's lot, and it is the lot of all His servants. This is a cross we must all carry, or we shall never wear the crown. Do you fancy that this is a new experience? Look at Joseph: his brethren could not bear him. Yet it was he that saved the family and fed them in time of famine. Look at David: his brothers asked why he had left the charge of the sheep to come down to the battle, suspecting that the pride of his heart had brought him among the soldiers and the standards. Yet nobody could bring back Goliath's head but that young David. Take a lesson from the ruddy<sup>33</sup> hero: take no notice of what your brethren say about you. Go and bring back the giant's head.

A good adventure<sup>34</sup> is the best answer to evil accusations. If you are serving the Master, let their scandal stir you up to more self-consecration. If they cry out against you as too forward, serve the Lord with more vigor; and you will anti-

dote the venom of their tongues. Did you enter into Christ's work in order to be honored among men? Then retire from it, for you came with a bad motive. But if you enlisted purely to bring honor to Him and to win His smile, what more do you want? What more do you want? Be not, therefore, disheartened because you are not applauded. Be certain of this: to be kept in the rear rank is often necessary to future eminence.<sup>35</sup> If you take a man, put him in front, pat him on the back, and say, "What a great man he is!"—he will make a false step before long, and there will be an end of your hero. But when a man is brought forward by God, he is often one whom everybody criticizes, finds fault with, and declaims as an impostor; but the banter<sup>36</sup> he is exposed to serves as ballast<sup>37</sup> for his mind. When he comes off with success, he will not be spoiled with conceit; the grace of God will make him bow with gratitude. The sword that is meant for a princely hand, to split through skull and backbone in the day of battle, must be annealed<sup>38</sup> in the furnace again and again. It cannot be fit for such desperate work until it has passed through the fire full many a time. Do not ask to be appreciated. Never be as mean<sup>39</sup> as that. Appreciate yourself in the serenity of conscience, and leave your honor with your God. I must speak now...

VI. TO THOSE WHO ARE DISCOURAGED BECAUSE THEY HAVE HAD SO LITTLE SUCCESS... Are there any of you who fear that you have toiled in vain and spent your strength for nought? I would entreat you, dear friends, not to be satisfied with casting in the seed unless you reap some good results. Yet do not be so fainthearted as to give up because of a little disappointment. Though you cannot be satisfied without fruit, yet do not cease to sow because one season proves a failure. I would not have our friends the farmers abandon agriculture because this year they have a bad crop. If they were to measure their future prospects by the present failure, it would be a great pity. If you have preached, taught, or done work for Christ with little success until now, do not infer that you will always be unsuccessful. Regret the lack of prosperity, but do not relinquish the labor of seeking it. You may reasonably be sorrowful, but you have no right to despair.

Non-success is a trial of faith that has been endured by many a trusty servant who has been triumphant in the issue. Did not the disciples toil all night and catch nothing? Did we not read just now of some who cast the net, and yet took no fish? Did not our Lord say that some seed would fall on stony ground and some among the thorns and that from these there would be no harvest? What good did Jeremiah do? I have no doubt he labored, and God blessed him. But the result of his preaching was that he said, "The bellows are burned in the fire" (Jer 6:29). He had blown [upon] the fire until he had burnt the bellows, but no man's heart was melted. "Woe is me!" said he. "Oh that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears" (Jer 9:1). I do not know what the result of Noah's ministry was; but I do know that he was a preacher of righteousness for a hundred and twenty years, and yet he never brought a soul into the ark except his own family. Poor preaching, we may count it, judging by the influence it exerted. Yet we know that it was grand preaching, such as God commended. Do not, then, grudge the time or the strength you lay out in the service of our great Lord because you do not see your efforts thrive, for better men than you have wept over failure.

Remember, too, that if you really do serve the Lord thoroughly and heartily, He will accept you and acknowledge your service, even though no good should come of it. It is your business to cast the bread on the waters. If you do not find it after many days, that is not your business. It is your business to scatter the seed. But no farmer says to his servant, "John, you have not served me well, for there is no harvest." The man would say, "Could I make a harvest, sir? I have ploughed, and I have sowed. What more could I do?" Even so, our good Lord is not austere,<sup>40</sup> nor does He demand of us more than we can do. If you have ploughed and if you have sowed, although there should be no harvest, you are clear and accepted.

Did it never strike you that you may be now employed in breaking up ground and preparing the soil from which other laborers who come after you will reap very plentifully? Perhaps your Master knows what a capital<sup>41</sup> ploughman you are. He has a large farm, and He never means to let you become a reaper because you do the ploughing so well. Your Master does not intend you to take part in the harvest because you are such a good hand at sowing; and as He has crops that need sowing all the year round, He keeps you at that work. He knows you better than you know yourself. Perchance<sup>42</sup> if He were once to let you get on the top of a loaded wagon of your own sheaves, you would turn dizzy and make a fall of it—so He says, "You keep to your ploughing and your sowing, and somebody else shall do the reaping."

Peradventure when your course is run, you will see from heaven—where it will be safe for you to see it—that you did not labor in vain nor spend your strength for nought. “One soweth, and another reapeth” (Joh 4:37). This is the divine economy. I think that every man that loves his Master will say, “So long as there does but come a harvest, I will not stipulate about<sup>43</sup> who reaps it. Give me faith enough to be assured that the reaping will come, and I will be content.” Look at William Carey<sup>44</sup> going to India, his prayer being “India for Christ.” What did Carey live to see? Well, he saw good-speed<sup>45</sup> enough to rejoice his heart; but certainly, he did not see the fulfillment of all his prayer. Successive missionaries have since gone and spent their life on that vast field of enterprise. With what result? A result amply sufficient to justify all their toil, but, as compared with the millions that sit in heathendom, utterly inadequate to the craving of the Church, much less to the crown of Christ. It does not much matter how any one man fares. The mighty empire will revert to the world’s Redeemer, and I can almost trace in the records of the future the writing of: “These be the names of the mighty men whom David had,” as the valiant deeds of His heroes are chronicled by our Lord.

When old St. Paul’s cathedral had to be taken down in order to make room for the present noble edifice, some of the walls were immensely strong and stood like rocks. Sir Christopher Wren<sup>46</sup> determined to throw them down by the old Roman battering ram. The battering ram began to work, and the men worked at it for hours and hours, day after day, without apparent effect. Blow after blow came on the wall—tremendous thuds that made the bystanders tremble. The wall continued to stand until they thought it was a useless operation. But the architect knew. He continued working his battering ram until every particle of the wall felt the motion; and, at last, over it went in one tremendous ruin! Did anybody commend those workmen who caused the final crash or ascribe all the success to them? Not a bit of it. It was the whole of them together. Those who had gone away to their meals, those who had begun days before, had as much honor in the matter as those who struck the last blow.

And it is so in the work of Christ. We must keep on battering, battering, battering, and at last, though it may not be for another thousand years, the Lord will triumph! Though Christ cometh quickly, He may not come for another ten thousand years. But in any case, idolatry must die and truth must reign. The accumulated prayers and energies of ages shall do the deed, and God shall be glorified. Only let us persevere in holy effort, and the end is sure. When a certain American general was fighting, they said, “What are you doing?” He said, “I am not doing much, but I keep pegging away.<sup>47</sup>” That is what we must do. We cannot do much at any one time, but we must keep on. We must keep on pegging away at the enemy, and something will come of it by-and-by.

Possibly, dear friends, some of you who think you have had slender success may have had a great deal more than you know of. Others there may be whose want of success should suggest to them to try somewhere else, or else to try some other method. If we cannot do good in one way, we must do it in another. Bring the matter before God in prayer. Cry mightily to Him, for He will help you yet to do it, and His shall be the glory. When He has laid you low, when He has taught you how inefficient you are, when He has driven you in despair to rely implicitly upon Himself, then it may be that He will give you more trophies and triumphs than you ever dreamed of. Anyhow, whether I prosper in life or not is not my question. To bring souls to Christ is my main endeavor, but it is not the ultimate proof of my ministry. My business is to live for God, to lay aside self, and give myself up wholly to Him. If I do that, I shall be accepted whatever else may happen.

I wish we had the spirit of that brave old man who was condemned to the stake. They were going to burn him. He knew that the sentence was to be carried out the next morning, but with a soul full of courage and with a merry heart, he sat the last thing at night talking with his friends—faggots<sup>48</sup> and fire to face in the morning, recollect—and he said to one of them, “I am an old tree in my Master’s orchard. When I was young, I bore a little fruit by His grace. It was unripe and sour, but He bore with it: and I have grown mellow in my older days and brought forth some fruit for Him by His grace. Now the tree has grown so old that my Master is going to cut it down and burn the old log. Well, it will warm the hearts of some of His family while I am burning.” He even smiled for joy to think that he might be put to so good a purpose.

I want you to have that spirit and to say, “I will live for Christ while I am young. I will die for Him and warm the hearts of my brethren.” You know that the persecutions of those martyr days begat such heroism and gallantry among disciples, as prudent people in peaceful times can scarcely credit.<sup>49</sup> It is said of the old Baptist church over in the City that the members went to Smithfield<sup>50</sup> early one morning to see their pastor burnt; when someone asked the young people what they went there for, they said that they went to learn the way. That is splendid! They went to learn the way!

Oh, go to the Master's Cross to learn the way to live and die! See how He spent Himself for you, and then sally forth<sup>51</sup> and spend yourselves for Him. "Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD" (Isa 49:5). Though you may think that you do not succeed, your whole-hearted consecration shall be your honor in the Day of the Lord. By your hallowed life, and your humble service, you shall bring glory to His name.

O Lord, set us in our charges and encourage us in the service of Thy house! "Let the beauty of the LORD our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it" (Psa 90:17). May the blessing of our covenant God rest upon you, my brethren, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

"God takes delight in showing of mercy (Mic 7:18). He takes no pleasure in giving His people up to adversity (Hos 11:8). Mercy and kindness flow from Him freely, naturally. He is never severe, never harsh. He never stings, He never terrifies us, but when He is sadly provoked by us.

God's hand sometimes may lie very hard upon His people, when His heart, His affections at those very times may be yearning towards them (Jer 31:18-20).

No man can tell the heart of God by His hand. God's hand of mercy may be open to those against whom His heart is set, as you see in the rich poor fool, and Dives, in the Gospel. And His hand of severity may lie hard upon those on whom He has set His heart, as you may see in Job and Lazarus."—Thomas Brooks

THE BIBLE AND CONSOLATION

James Buchanan (1804-1870)

MOURNERS in Zion, be comforted! If yours is a life of sorrow, yours also is a religion of hope. If the book of Providence seems to you to be “written within and without,” like Ezekiel’s roll, in characters of “lamentations, and mourning, and woe” (Eze 2:10), the Bible is filled with consolation and peace. And the more stormy your passage through this world, the more awful God’s judgments, the more severe and confounding your trials and bereavements<sup>1</sup> may be, the more should that blessed book be endeared to your hearts—of which every true disciple will say with the afflicted Psalmist, “This is my comfort in my affliction” (Psa 119:50).

It is not one of the least benefits of severe affliction that it shatters our confidence in every other stay,<sup>2</sup> breaks up our hopes from every other quarter, and leads us in simplicity to search the Word of God for comfort.

The grand peculiarity of the Bible, as a book of consolation, is that it seeks not to cast our sufferings into the shade, but rather sets them before us in all their variety and magnitude. It teaches us to find consolation in the midst of acknowledged sorrow and causes light to arise out of the deepest darkness—“That no man should be moved by these afflictions: for yourselves know that we were appointed thereunto” (1Th 3:3). In many respects, it gives a more gloomy view of human life than we are oftentimes<sup>3</sup> willing to entertain. It represents affliction as “ordained” for us and “appointed” so that it cannot be escaped. It tells us that our future life will be checkered with trials, even as the past has been. It gives no assurance of respite<sup>4</sup> from suffering, so long as we are in this world: “For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake” (Phi 1:29). And when it traces these afflictive events to their causes; when it represents suffering as the fruit and the wages of sin; when it charges us with guilt and affirms that we have provoked the Lord to anger; when it leads us to regard our sorrows as connected with our characters and inflicted by a righteous Governor and Judge; and when, carrying our eye beyond this world altogether, it points to an eternal state of retribution, where sorrows infinitely more severe and judgments infinitely more confounding await impenitent and unforgiven guilt—it does present such a view of our present condition and future prospects as may well fill us with awe and alarm. Yet still it is the “book of consolation”; still it contains the elements of peace, the seed of hope, the well-spring of eternal joy.

It is out of the very darkness of our present state and our eternal prospects that the brightness of that dawn appears that shall issue in everlasting day; the golden rays of divine light and love appear in the midst of that thick cloud; the cup of bitterness is sweetened by an infusion of mercy—so that the Christian can be “joyful in the midst of tribulation,” and “greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, [he is] in heaviness through manifold temptations” (1Pe 1:6). “Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ’s sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy” (1Pe 4:12-13).

Such is the splendor, the brightness, the glory, the happiness, and blessedness that are reserved for the saints in heaven, that had I all the tongues of men on earth and all the excellencies of the angels in heaven, yet I would not be able to conceive nor to express that vision of glory to you! That glory is inconceivable and inexpressible! It is best to be hastening there, that we may feel and enjoy that which we shall never be able to declare!

All the troubles, afflictions, and sorrows of this life, in comparison with eternal happiness and blessedness, are to be considered as nothing. They are but as the point of a pin compared to the starry heavens.—Thomas Brooks

Oh, how sweet are the fruits of Christ’s mediation to the faith of His saints! He that can find no relief in mercy, pardon, grace, acceptance with God, holiness, sanctification, etc., is an utter stranger to these things...that are prepared for believers. —John Owen

GOOD COMES THROUGH AFFLICTION

Thomas Brooks (1608-1680)

“It is good for me that I have been afflicted.”—Psalm 119:71

A GRACIOUS soul secretly concludes, “As stars shine brightest in the night, so God will make my soul shine and glisten like gold while I am in this furnace, and when I come out of the furnace of affliction.” “But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold” (Job 23:10).

Surely, as the taste of honey opened Jonathan’s eyes, so this cross, this affliction shall open my eyes. By this stroke, I shall come to have a clearer sight of my sins and of my self and a fuller sight of my God (Job 33:27-28; 40:4-5; 13:1-7)!

Surely this affliction shall proceed in the purging away of my dross (Isa 1:25)!

Surely as plowing of the ground kills the weeds, and harrowing breaks hard clods, so these afflictions shall kill my sins and soften my heart (Hos 5:15; 6:1-3)!

Surely as the plaster<sup>1</sup> draws out the infectious core, so the afflictions that are upon me shall draw out the core of pride, the core of self-love, the core of envy, the core of earthliness, the core of formality, the core of hypocrisy (Psa 119:67, 71)!

Surely by these afflictions, the Lord will crucify my heart more and more to the world and the world to my heart (Gal 6:14; Psa 131:1-3)!

Surely, by these afflictions, the Lord will keep pride from my soul (Job 33:14-21)!

Surely, these afflictions are but the Lord’s pruning-knives by which He will bleed my sins, prune my heart, and make it more fertile and fruitful! They are but the Lord’s potion by which He will clear me and rid me of those spiritual diseases and maladies that are most deadly and dangerous to my soul! Affliction is such a healing potion as will carry away all soul-diseases better than all other remedies (Zec 13:8-9)!

Surely, these afflictions shall increase my spiritual communion with God (Rom 5:3-4)!

Surely by these afflictions, I shall be made to partake more of God’s holiness (Heb 12:10)! As black soap makes white clothes, so do sharp afflictions make holy hearts!

Surely, by these afflictions, the Lord will draw out my heart more and more to seek Him! “In their afflictions they will seek me early” (Hos 5:15)! In times of affliction, Christians will industriously, speed-ily, early seek unto their Lord!

Surely by these trials and troubles, the Lord will fix my soul more than ever upon the great concernments of the eternal world (Joh 14:1-3; Rom 8:17-18; 2Co 4:16-18)!

Surely by these afflictions the Lord will work in me more tenderness and compassion towards those who are afflicted (Heb 10:34; 13:3)!

Surely, these afflictions are but God’s love-tokens! “As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten” (Rev 3:19)! So says the holy Christian, “O my soul! Be quiet; be still. All is sent in love; all is a fruit of divine favor. I see honey upon the top of every twig; I see the rod is but a rosemary branch;<sup>2</sup> I have sugar with my gall,<sup>3</sup> and wine with my wormwood; therefore be silent, O my soul!”

Afflictions abase the carnal attractions of the world outside us that might entice us! Affliction abates the lustiness of the flesh within us that might otherwise ensnare us!

Afflictions humble us and keep us low! Holy hearts will be humble under the afflicting hand of God. When God’s rod is upon their backs, their mouths shall be in the dust! A godly heart will lie lowest when the hand of God is lifted highest.

All this proves that affliction is a mighty advantage to us! “It is good for me that I have been afflicted...” (Psa 119:71).

“For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favour is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.”

—Psalm 30:5

Their mourning shall last but until morning. God will turn their winter’s night into a summer’s day, their sighing into singing,
 their grief into gladness,
 their mourning into music,
 their bitter into sweet,
 their wilderness into a paradise.

The life of a Christian is filled up with interchanges of sickness and health, weakness and strength,
 want and wealth,
 disgrace and honor,
 crosses and comforts,
 miseries and mercies,
 joys and sorrows,
 mirth and mourning.

All honey would harm us; all wormwood<sup>4</sup> would undo us; a composition of both is the best way to keep our souls in a healthy constitution. It is best and most for the health of the soul that the warm south wind of mercy and the cold north wind of adversity do both blow upon it. And though every wind that blows shall blow good to the saints, yet certainly their sins die most and their graces thrive best when they are under the frigid, drying, nipping north wind of calamity, as well as under the warm, nourishing south wind of mercy and prosperity.

“In the day of adversity, consider...”—Ecclesiastes 7:14

If you would be quiet and silent under your present troubles and trials, then dwell much upon the benefit, the profit, the advantage that has redounded<sup>5</sup> to your souls by all your former troubles and afflictions. Oh! Consider how by former afflictions the Lord has revealed sin, prevented sin, and mortified sin!

Consider how the Lord by former afflictions has revealed to you the impotency, the mutability,<sup>6</sup> the insufficiency, and the vanity of the world and all worldly concerns!

Consider how the Lord by former afflictions has melted your heart, broken your heart, humbled your heart, and prepared your heart for clearer, fuller, and sweeter enjoyments of Him!

Consider what pity, what compassion, what affections, what tenderness, and what sweetness former afflictions have wrought in you towards others in misery!

Consider what room former afflictions have made in your soul for God, for His Word, for good counsel, and for divine comfort!

Consider how by former afflictions the Lord has made you more [a] partaker of His Christ, His Spirit, His holiness, His goodness, etc.

Consider how by former afflictions the Lord has made you to look towards heaven more, to mind heaven more, to prize heaven more, and to long for heaven more, etc.

Now, who can seriously consider all the good that he has gotten by former afflictions and not be silent under present afflictions? Who can remember those choice, those great, and those precious profits that his soul has made of former afflictions, and not reason himself into a holy silence under present afflictions thusly, “O my soul! Has not God done you much good, great good, special good by former afflictions? Yes! O my soul! Has not God done that for you by former afflictions, which you would not undo for ten thousand worlds? Yes! And is not God—O my soul!—as powerful as ever, as faithful as ever, as gracious as ever, and as ready and willing as ever to do you good by present afflictions as He has been to do you good by former afflictions?”

“I was dumb, I opened not my mouth; because thou didst it.”—Psalm 39:9

In the words, you may observe three things: (1) The person speaking and that is David. David a king, David a saint, David “a man after God’s own heart,” David a Christian. And here we are to look upon David, not as a king, but as a Christian, as a man whose heart was right with God. (2) The action and carriage of David under the hand of God in these words: “I was silent; I would not open my mouth.” (3) The reason of this humble and sweet carriage of his in these words, “Thou didst it,” or, in other words, “You are the One Who has done this!”

The proposition is this: That it is the great duty and concern of gracious souls to be mute and silent under the greatest afflictions, the saddest providences, and sharpest trials that they meet with in this world.

David’s silence is an acknowledgment of God as the author of all the afflictions that come upon us. There is no sickness so little but God has a finger in it, though it be but the aching of the little finger. David looks through all secondary causes to the first cause and is silent. He sees a hand of God in all and so sits mute and quiet. The sight of God in an affliction is of an irresistible efficacy to silence the heart and to stop the mouth of a godly man.

Men who do not see God in an affliction are easily cast into a feverish fit. They will quickly be in a flame; and when their passions are up and their hearts on fire, they will begin to be [disrespectful] and make no bones of telling God to His teeth that they do well to be angry. Those who will not acknowledge God to be the author of all their afflictions will be ready enough to fall in with that mad principle of the Manichees,<sup>7</sup> who maintained the devil to be the author of all calamities; as if there could be any evil or affliction in the city and the Lord have no hand in it (Amo 3:6).

If God’s hand be not seen in the affliction, the heart will do nothing but fret and rage under affliction. Those who can see the ordering hand of God in all their afflictions will with David lay their hands upon their mouths when the rod of God is upon their backs! They see that it was a Father Who put those bitter cups in their hands; love that laid those heavy crosses upon their shoulders; grace that put those yokes around their necks; and this caused much quietness and calmness in their spirits.

When God’s people are under the rod, He makes by His Spirit and Word such sweet music in their souls [that it calms] all tumultuous motions,<sup>8</sup> passions,<sup>9</sup> and [disturbances].

COMFORT FOR SUFFERING SAINTS

Jerome Zanchius (1516-1590)

“And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son.”—Romans 8:28-29

WITHOUT a due sense of predestination, we shall [lack] the surest and the most powerful inducement to patience, resignation, and dependence on God under every spiritual and temporal affliction.
How sweet must the following considerations be to a distressed believer!

1. There most certainly exists an almighty, all wise, and infinitely gracious God (Heb 11:6).
2. He has given me in times past and is giving me at present (if I had but eyes to see it) many signal intimations of His love to me, both in a way of providence and grace (Eph 1).
3. This love of His is immutable.<sup>1</sup> He never repents of it nor withdraws it (Phi 1:6).
4. Whatever comes to pass in time is the result of His will from everlasting (1Co 8:6), consequently—
5. My afflictions were a part of His original plan and are all ordered in number, weight, and measure (Psa 22:24).
6. The very hairs of my head (every one) are counted by Him; nor can a single hair fall to the ground but in consequence of His determination (Luk 12:7). Hence—
7. My distresses are not the result of chance, accident, or a fortuitous<sup>2</sup> combination of circumstances (Psa 56:8), but—
8. My distresses are the providential accomplishment of God’s purpose (Rom 8:28), and—
9. My distresses are designed to answer some wise and gracious ends (Jam 5:10-11), and—
10. My affliction shall not continue a moment longer than God sees [fit] (2Co 7:6-7).
11. He Who brought me to it has promised to support me under it and to carry me through it (Psa 34:15-17).
12. All shall most assuredly work together for His glory and my good, therefore—
13. “The cup which my heavenly Father hath given me to drink, shall I not drink it?” (Joh 18:11).

Yes, I will, in the strength He imparts, even rejoice in tribulation. Using the means of possible redress,<sup>3</sup> which He hath or may hereafter put into my hands, I will commit myself and the event to Him, Whose purpose cannot be overthrown, Whose plan cannot be disconcerted, and Who, whether I am resigned or not, will still go on to work all things after the counsel of His own will (Rom 5:3-6; Psa 33:11-12; Eph 1:11).

Above all, when the suffering Christian takes his election into the account and knows that he was by an eternal and immutable act of God appointed to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ; that, of course, he hath a city prepared for him above, a building of God, a house not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens; and that the heaviest sufferings of the present life are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in the saints—what adversity can possibly befall us, which the assured hope of blessings like these will not infinitely overbalance (Pro 8:35; 2Co 5:1; Rom 8:18; Rom 8:33-37)?...However keenly afflictions might wound us on their first access, yet under the impression of such animating views we should quickly come to ourselves again; and the arrows of tribulation would in great measure lose their sharpness. Christians [lack] nothing but absolute resignation to render them perfectly happy in every possible circumstance; and absolute resignation can only flow from an absolute belief of, and an absolute acquiescence<sup>4</sup> in, God’s absolute providence, founded on absolute predestination (1Th 1:2-4).

BELOVED, AND YET AFFLICTED

THAT disciple whom Jesus loved is not at all backward<sup>1</sup> to re-cord that Jesus loved Lazarus too. There are no jealousies among those who are chosen by the Well-beloved. Jesus loved Mary, Martha, and Lazarus: it is a happy thing where a whole family lives in the love of Jesus. They were a favored trio; yet, as the serpent came into Paradise, so did sorrow enter their quiet household at Bethany. Lazarus was sick. They all felt that if Jesus were there, disease would flee at His presence—what then should they do but let Him know of their trial? Lazarus was near to death’s door, and so his tender sisters at once reported the fact to Jesus, saying, “Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.” Many a time since then has that same message been sent to our Lord...

NOTICE, FIRST, A FACT MENTIONED IN THE TEXT: “Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.” The sisters were somewhat astonished that it should be so, for the word behold implies a measure of surprise. “We love him and would make him well directly. Thou lovest him, and yet he remains sick. Thou canst heal him with a word; why then is Thy loved one sick?” Have not you, dear sick friend, often wondered how your painful or lingering disease could be consistent with your being chosen, called, and made one with Christ? I dare say this has greatly perplexed you. Yet in very truth, it is by no means strange, but a thing to be expected.

We need not be astonished that the man whom the Lord loves is sick, for he is only a man. The love of Jesus does not separate us from the common necessities and infirmities of human life. Men of God are still men. The Covenant of Grace<sup>2</sup> is not a charter of exemption from consumption,<sup>3</sup> rheumatism,<sup>4</sup> or asthma.<sup>5</sup> The bodily ills, which come upon us because of our flesh, will attend us to the tomb; for Paul saith, “We that are in this tabernacle<sup>6</sup> do groan” (2Co 5:4).

Those whom the Lord loves are the more likely to be sick, since they are under a peculiar discipline. It is written, “Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth” (Heb 12:16). Affliction of some sort is one of the marks of the trueborn child of God, and it frequently happens that the trial takes the form of illness. Shall we therefore wonder that we have to take our turn in the sick chamber? If Job, David, and Hezekiah must each one smart, who are we that we should be amazed because we are in ill health?

Nor is it remarkable that we are sick if we reflect upon the great benefit that often flows from it to ourselves. I do not know what peculiar improvement may have been wrought in Lazarus, but many a disciple of Jesus would have been of small use if he had not been afflicted. Strong men are apt to be harsh, imperious,<sup>7</sup> and unsympathetic, and therefore they need to be put into the furnace and melted down. I have known Christian women who would never have been so gentle, tender, wise, experienced, and holy if they had not been mellowed by physical pain. There are fruits in God’s garden as well as in man’s that never ripen until they are bruised. Young women who are apt to be volatile,<sup>8</sup> conceited, or talkative are often trained to be full of sweetness and light by sickness after sickness by which they are taught to sit at Jesus’ feet. Many have been able to say with the psalm-ist, “It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes” (Psa 119:71). For this reason, even such as are highly favored and blessed among women may feel a sword piercing through their hearts (Luk 2:35).

Oftentimes this sickness of the Lord’s loved ones is for the good of others. Lazarus was permitted to be sick and to die that by his death and resurrection the Apostles might be benefitted. His sickness was “for the glory of God.” Throughout these nineteen hundred years that have succeeded Lazarus’ sickness, all believers have been getting good out of it; and this afternoon we are all the better because he languished and died. The Church and the world may derive immense advantage through the sorrows of good men: the careless may be awakened, the doubting may be convinced, the ungodly may be converted, the mourner may be comforted through our testimony in sickness—and if so, would we wish to avoid pain and weakness? Are we not quite willing that our friends should say of us also, “Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick”?

OUR TEXT, HOWEVER, NOT ONLY RECORDS A FACT, BUT ALSO MENTIONS A REPORT OF THAT FACT: The sisters sent and told Jesus. Let us keep up a constant correspondence with our Lord about everything... Jesus knows all about us, but it is a great relief to pour out our hearts before Him. When John the Baptist’s broken-hearted disciples saw their leader beheaded, they “took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus” (Mat 14:12). They could not have done better. In all trouble, send a message to Jesus and do not keep your misery to yourself. In His case, there is no need of reserve. There is no fear of His treating you with cold pride, heartless indifference, or cruel treachery. He is a confidant<sup>9</sup> Who never can betray us, a Friend Who never will refuse us.

There is this fair hope about telling Jesus that He is sure to support us under it. If you go to Jesus and ask, “Most gracious Lord, why am I sick? I thought I was useful while in health, and now I can do nothing; why is this?”—He may be pleased to show you why. If not, He will make you willing to bear His will with patience without knowing why. He can bring His truth to your mind to cheer you, strengthen your heart by His presence, or send you unexpected comforts and give you to glory in your afflictions. “Ye people, pour out your heart before him: God is a refuge for us” (Psa 62:8). Not in vain did Mary and Martha send to tell Jesus, and not in vain do any seek His face.

Remember, too, that Jesus may give healing. It would not be wise to live by a supposed faith and cast off the physician and his medicines, any more than to discharge the butcher and the tailor and expect to be fed and clothed by faith—but this would be far better than forgetting the Lord altogether and trusting to man only. Healing for both body and soul must be sought from God. We make use of medicines, but these can do nothing apart from the Lord, “Who healeth all thy diseases” (Psa 103:3). We may tell Jesus about our aches and pains, gradual declining, and hacking coughs. Some persons are afraid to go to God about their health: they pray for the pardon of sin, but dare not ask the Lord to remove a headache—and yet, surely, if the hairs outside our head are all numbered by God, it is not much more of a condescension for Him to relieve throbs and pressures inside the head. Our big things must be very little to the great God, and our little things cannot be much less. It is a proof of the greatness of the mind of God that while ruling the heavens and the earth, He is not so absorbed by these great concerns as to be forgetful of the least pain or want of any one of His poor children. We may go to Him about our failing breath, for He first gave us lungs and life. We may tell Him about the eye that grows dim and the ear that loses hearing, for He made them both. We may mention the swollen knee, the gathering finger, the stiff neck, and the sprained foot; for He made all these members, redeemed them all, and will raise them all from the grave! Go at once, and say, “Lord, behold he whom thou lovest is sick.”

THIRDLY, LET US NOTICE IN THE CASE OF LAZARUS A RESULT THAT WE SHOULD NOT HAVE EXPECTED. No doubt when Mary and Martha sent to tell Jesus, they looked to see Lazarus recover as soon as the messenger reached the Master, but they were not gratified. For two days, the Lord remained in the same place; and not until He knew that Lazarus was dead did He speak of going to Judea. This teaches us that Jesus may be informed of our trouble and yet may act as if He were indifferent to it. We must not expect in every case that prayer for recovery will be answered: if so, nobody would die who had chick<sup>10</sup> or child, friend or acquaintance, to pray for him. In our prayers for the lives of beloved children of God, we must not forget that there is one prayer that may be crossing ours: Jesus prays, “Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory” (Joh 17:24). We pray that they may remain with us, but when we recognize that Jesus wants them above, what can we do but admit His larger claim and say, “Not as I will, but as thou wilt” (Mat 26:39)? In our own case, we may pray the Lord to raise us up; and though He loves us, He may permit us to grow worse and worse and at last to die. Hezekiah had fifteen years added to his life, but we may not gain the reprieve of a single day. Never set such store by the life of anyone dear to you, or even by your own life, as to be rebellious against the Lord. If you hold the life of any dear one with too tight a hand, you are making a rod for your own back. If you love your own earthly life too well, you are making a thorny pillow for your dying bed. Children are often idols; and in such cases, their too ardent lovers are idolaters... Shall dust be so dear to us that we quarrel with our God about it? If our Lord leaves us to suffer, let us not repine.<sup>11</sup> He must do that for us that is kindest and best, for He loves us better than we love ourselves.

Did I hear you say, “Yes, Jesus allowed Lazarus to die, but He raised him up again”? I answer, “He is the resurrection and the life to us also.” Be comforted concerning the departed: “Thy brother shall rise again” (Joh 11:23), and all of us whose hope is in Jesus shall partake in our Lord’s resurrection. Not only shall our souls live, but our bodies too shall be raised incorruptible. The grave will serve as a refining pot, and this vile body shall come forth vile no longer. Some Christians are greatly cheered by the thought of living until the Lord comes, and so escaping death. I confess that I think this no great gain; for so far from having any preference over them that are asleep, those who are alive and remain at His coming will miss one point of fellowship in not dying and rising like their Lord. Beloved, all things are yours, and death is expressly mentioned in the list (Rom 8:35-37). Therefore do not dread it, but rather “long for evening to undress, that you may rest with God.”<sup>12</sup>

I WILL CLOSE WITH A QUESTION: “Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus”—does Jesus in a special sense love you? Alas, many sick ones have no evidence of any special love of Jesus towards them, for they have never sought His face nor trusted in Him. Jesus might say to them, “I never knew you” (Mat 7:23); for they have turned their backs upon His blood and His Cross. Answer this question, dear friend, to your own heart: “Do you love Jesus?” If so, you love Him because He first loved you (1Jo 4:19). Are you trusting Him? If so, that faith of yours is the proof that He has loved you from before the foundation of the world (Eph 1:4); for faith is the token by which He plights His troth<sup>13</sup> to His beloved...If Jesus loves you and you are sick, let all the world see how you glorify God in your sickness. Let friends and nurses see how the beloved of the Lord are cheered and comforted by Him. Let your holy resignation astonish them and set them admiring your Beloved, Who is so gracious to you that He makes you happy in pain and joyful at the gates of the grave. If your religion is worth anything, it ought to support you now!

THE GREAT GIVER

“He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?”—Romans 8:32

THE above verse supplies us with an instance of divine logic. It contains a conclusion drawn from a premise: the premise is that God delivered up Christ for all His people; therefore everything else that is needed by them is sure to be given. There are many examples in Holy Writ of such divine logic. “Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?” (Mat 6:30). “For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life” (Rom 5:10). “If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?” (Mat 7:11). So here in our text the reasoning is irresistible and goes straight to the understanding and heart.

Our text tells of the gracious character of our loving God as interpreted by the gift of His Son. And this, not merely for the instruction of our minds, but for the comfort and assurance of our hearts. The gift of His own Son is God’s guarantee to His people of all needed blessings. The greater includes the less: His unspeakable spiritual gift is the pledge of all needed temporal mercies. Note—

1. THE FATHER’S COSTLY SACRIFICE. This brings before us a side of the truth upon which I fear we rarely meditate. We delight to think of the wondrous love of Christ, Whose love was stronger than death, and Who deemed no suffering too great for His people. But what must it have meant to the heart of the Father when His Beloved left His heavenly home! God is love, and nothing is as sensitive as love. I do not believe that Deity is emotionless, stoic<sup>1</sup> as represented by the Schoolmen<sup>2</sup> of the Middle Ages. I believe the sending forth of the Son was something that the heart of the Father felt—that it was a real sacrifice on His part.

Weigh well, then, the solemn fact that premises the sure promise that follows: God “spared not his own Son”! Expressive, profound, melting words! Knowing full well, as He only could, all that redemption involved: the Law rigid and unbending, insisting upon perfect obedience, and demanding death for its transgressors; justice, stern and inexorable,<sup>3</sup> requiring full satisfaction, refusing to “clear the guilty” (Exo 34:7). Yet God withheld not the only sacrifice that could meet the case.

God “spared not his own Son,” though knowing full well the humiliation and ignominy<sup>4</sup> of Bethlehem’s manger, the ingratitude of men, the not having where to lay His head, the hatred and opposition of the ungodly, the enmity and bruising of Satan—yet He did not hesitate. God did not relax ought of the holy requirements of His throne, nor abate one whit<sup>5</sup> of the awful curse. No, He spared not His own Son. The utmost farthing<sup>6</sup> was exacted; the last dregs in the cup of wrath must be drained. Even when His Beloved cried from the Garden, “If it be possible, let this cup pass from me,” God spared Him not. Even when vile hands had nailed Him to the tree, God cried, “Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow, saith the LORD of hosts: smite the shepherd” (Zec 13:7).

2. THE FATHER’S GRACIOUS DESIGN. “But delivered him up for us all.” Here we are told why the Father made such a costly sacrifice: He spared not Christ that He might spare us! It was not [lack] of love to the Savior, but wondrous, matchless, fathomless love for us! O marvel at the wondrous design of the Most High! “God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son” (Joh 3:16). Verily, such love passeth knowledge. Moreover, He made this costly sacrifice not grudgingly or reluctantly, but freely out of love...He “delivered him up”—to shame and spitting, to hatred and persecution, to suffering and death itself. And He delivered Him up for us—descendants of rebellious Adam, depraved and defiled, corrupt and sinful, vile and worthless! For us who had gone into the “far country” of alienation from Him, and there spent our substance in riotous<sup>7</sup> living (Luk 15:13). Yes, “for us” who had gone astray like sheep, each one turning to “his own way” (Isa 53:6). For us “who were by nature the children of wrath, even as others,” in whom there dwelt no

good thing (Eph 2:3). For us who had rebelled against our Creator, hated His holiness, despised His Word, broken His commandments, resisted His Spirit! For us who richly deserved to be cast into the everlasting burnings and receive those wages that our sins so fully earned (Rom 6:23).

Yes, for thee fellow Christian, who art sometimes tempted to interpret your afflictions as tokens of God's hardness, who regard your poverty as a mark of His neglect and your seasons of darkness as evidences of His desertion. O, confess to Him now the wickedness of such dishonoring doubtings, and never again question the love of Him Who spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all.

Faithfulness demands that I should point out the qualifying pronoun in our text. It is not God "delivered him up for all," but "for us all." This is definitely defined in the verses that immediately precede. In verse 31, the question is asked, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" The "us" are the high favorites of heaven, the objects of sovereign grace: God's elect. Yet in themselves they are, by nature and practice, deserving of nothing but wrath. But, thank God, it is "us all"—the worst as well as the best...

3. THE SPIRIT'S BLESSED INFERENCE. Ponder well the glorious "conclusion" that the Spirit of God here draws from the wondrous fact stated in the first part of our text, "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" How conclusive and how comforting is the inspired reasoning of the Apostle. Arguing from the greater to the less, he proceeds to assure the believer of God's readiness also freely to bestow all needed blessings. The gift of His own Son, so ungrudgingly and unreservedly bestowed, is the pledge of every other needed mercy.

Here is the unfailing guaranty and talisman<sup>8</sup> of perpetual reassurance to the drooping spirit of the tried believer. If God has done the greater, will He leave the less undone? Infinite love can never change. The love that spared not Christ cannot fail its objects nor begrudge<sup>9</sup> any needed blessings. The sad thing is that our hearts dwell upon what we have not, instead of upon what we do have. Therefore, the Spirit of God would here still our restless self-communings and quiet the repinings of ignorance with a soul-satisfying knowledge of the truth—by reminding us not only of the reality of our interest<sup>10</sup> in the love of God, but also of the extent of that blessing that flows therefrom.

Weigh well what is involved in the logic of this verse. First, the great Gift was given unasked; will He not bestow others for the asking? None of us supplicated<sup>11</sup> God to send forth His Beloved, yet He sent Him! [Therefore,] now we may come to the throne of grace and there present our requests in the virtuous and all-efficacious<sup>12</sup> name of Christ.

Second, the one great Gift cost Him much; will He not then bestow the lesser gifts that cost Him nothing save the delight of giving?...if a loved one made me a present of a precious jewel, would he refuse a little box to carry it in? How much less will He Who spared not His own Son withhold any good thing from them that walk uprightly (Psa 84:11)?

Third, the one Gift was bestowed when we were enemies; will not then God be gracious to us now that we have been reconciled and are His friends? If He had designs of mercy for us while we were yet in our sins, how much more will He regard us favorably now that we have been cleansed from all sin by the precious blood of His Son?

4. THE COMFORTING PROMISE. Observe the tense that is used here. It is not "how has he not with him also freely given us all things," though this is also true, for even now are we "heirs of God" (Rom 8:17). But our text goes further than this: "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" The second half of this wondrous verse contains something more than a record of the past: it supplies reassuring confidence both for the present and for the future. No time limits are to be set upon this "shall." Both now in the present and forever and ever in the future, God shall manifest Himself as the Great Giver. Nothing for His glory and for our good will He withhold. The same God Who delivered up Christ for us all is "without variableness<sup>13</sup> or shadow of turning" (Jam 1:17).

Mark the manner in which God gives: "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" God does not have to be coaxed. There is no reluctance in Him for us to overcome. He is ever more willing to give than we are to receive. Again, He is under no obligations to any. If He were, He would bestow of necessity, instead of giving "freely." Ever remember that He has a perfect right to do with His own as He pleases. He is free to give to whom He wills.

The word freely not only signifies that God is under no constraint, but also means that He makes no charge for His gifts, He places no price on His blessings...No, blessed be His name, God's gifts are "without money and without price" (Isa 55:1)—unmerited and unearned.

Finally, rejoice over the comprehensiveness of this promise: "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" The Holy Spirit would here regale<sup>14</sup> us with the extent of God's wondrous grant. What is it you need, fellow Christian? Is it pardon? Then has He not said, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1Jo 1:9)? Is it grace? Then has He not said, "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (2Co 9:8)? Is it a "thorn in the flesh"? This too will be given: "There was given to me a thorn in the flesh" (2Co 12:7). Is it rest? Then heed the Savior's invitation, "Come unto me...and I will give you rest" (Mat 11:28). Is it comfort? Is He not the God of all comfort (2Co 1:3)?

"How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" Is it temporal mercies that the reader is in need of? Are your circumstances adverse so that you are filled with dismal forebodings?<sup>15</sup> Does your cruse<sup>16</sup> of oil and barrel of meal look as though they will soon be quite empty (1Ki 17:14-16)? Then spread your need before God, and do it in simple, childlike faith. Think you that He will bestow the greater blessings of grace and deny the lesser ones of Providence? No, "My God shall supply all your need" (Phi 4:19).

True, He has not promised to give all you ask, for we often ask "amiss." Mark the qualifying clause: "How shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" We often desire things that would come in between Christ and us if they were granted; therefore does God in His faithfulness withhold them...May the Lord add His blessing to this little meditation.

CHRIST, THE FOUNTAIN OF COMFORT

Octavius Winslow (1808-1878)

“Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort.”—2 Corinthians 1:3

IT is in the heart of God to comfort His people. We need to begin with this central truth. All real comfort for any sorrow flows from sympathy, and true sympathy is the reflection of the heart. All our divine comfort is the pure reflection of the heart of God. Oh, how imperfectly we deal with this truth! God’s heart is our heart: in it, we dwell as in a home; and within it, we are enclosed. Can we doubt His heart for a moment when within His bosom He found the Lamb for our sin offering? If then, He spared not His own Son, but gave Him up for us all (Rom 8:32), shall the shadow of a doubt be allowed to rest in our minds, dimming the hope of comfort from God that rests there in the depth of our deepest grief and woe? In the very heart that gave us Jesus is welled the divine spring of all the true consolation that flows at our side through this valley of tears.

Daughter of affliction, son of sorrow, God loves you from His heart. Its every pulse of life, its every throb of love, its every spring of compassion, and its every drop of sympathy are yours. God’s heart speaks to your heart. Its deep love chimes with your deep grief. Do you doubt this? Listen to His command to His servant, the Prophet: “Comfort, comfort ye [how great the divine earnestness!] my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem [to the heart], and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned” (Isa 40:1-2.) Mark the tenderness of God’s comfort. It is like the heart of a mother. Whose heart is as full of love, tenderness, and sympathy as hers is? Listen to the touching words: “As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you” (Isa 66:13). From what source of love so pure, what fountain of sensibility so deep, what spring of tenderness so sweet, do sympathy and comfort flow in seasons of adversity and sorrow as hers? A mother’s heart is the first home that love enters and the last it leaves. Born with our birth, it grows with our growth and clings to us through all life’s changes. It smiles when we smile [and] weeps when we weep. When age has dimmed the eye, the head has turned gray, and the snows of many winters bow down the womanly form, the mother’s love is as deep, fresh, and warm as when first it held its newborn treasure. Such is the comfort with which God comforts His people. “As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you”...

We have introduced the idea that God’s comforts are parental. He comforts us as a father. All God’s corrections are fatherly; so is His comfort. The hand that slays, the hand that makes alive, the hand that wounds, and the hand that binds up are all the Father’s hand. “If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?” (Heb 12:7). “Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him” (Psa 103:13). This image finds an echo in every parental heart. How soothing it is to trace the discipline of trial to a father’s hand! God rebukes, chides, and corrects us, even as a father does the children that he loves; and this softens, subdues, and heals our wounds. “If this cup is from my Father,” exclaims the afflicted child, “then will I drink it without a murmur. He has pierced my heart through and through. He may have afflicted me, but He is my Father still, and I will give Him reverence, bowing silently and submissively to the rod that only love has sent and that is already bursting into bud and maturing into precious fruit, making me a partaker of His holiness.”

Accept, then, the comfort with which your heavenly Father seeks to support and soothe you in your present calamity. Do not refuse to be comforted. To refuse divine comfort because God’s hand has smitten is to cherish a murmuring and rebellious spirit against God. Your persistent rejection of all the promises, assurances, and consolations of your heavenly Father says, “God has deeply, sorely wounded me; and I will not forgive and cannot forget.” Should you be angry?...In love, He shaded your home with death or transferred earth’s flower to bloom in heaven’s paradise. Will you now reject the consolation He would sincerely pour into your heart, exclaiming in the spirit of contumacy<sup>1</sup> and rebellion, “My soul refuses to be comforted”? God forbid. Yield your heart to that comfort as the fainting flower to the dew, and, in the depth of your gratitude, exclaim, “Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, who comforteth us in all our tribulation” (2Co 1:3-4)...It is a delightful thought that in His own infinite heart, in the Covenant of Grace, in the Gospel of His love, and in our Lord Jesus Christ, He has made provision for all the sorrows of His people! No new trial springs up in your path, no new grief shades your spirit, no new calamity crushes you to the earth that the God of all comfort has not anticipated in the comfort He has provided for His Church. “Oh, how great is thy goodness which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men” (Psa 31:19).

And what a comfort is the Lord Jesus Christ to His people! There could be no revelation of God as the God of all comfort except through Christ. He is the great Depository of our consolation. He is even called the “consolation of Israel” (Luk 2:25). Christ is our comfort and the Holy Spirit is our Comforter. Who can listen to these words of tenderness and love distilled from His lips into the sorrowing hearts of His disciples on the eve of their separation from Him and not feel that Christ is truly the consolation of His people: “Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father’s house are many mansions” (Joh 14:1-2).

Does your sorrow spring from a sense of sin? Jesus’ blood pardons. Is it from a conviction of condemnation? Jesus’ righteousness justifies. Is it from the power of indwelling sin? Jesus’ grace subdues. Is it from some pressing temporal need? All resources are in Jesus, and He has promised to supply all your need so that your bread and your water will be sure. Is sore, crushing bereavement your grief? Where will you find such tender sympathy as in His heart of Whom it is recorded, “Jesus wept” (Joh 11:35)? Who can comfort that sorrow but Christ? He can and He will comfort it. Does some foe menace you, or does some insurmountable difficulty lie in your way? All power is Christ’s, and He will defend you from your enemy and roll your stone of difficulty from before your feet. Does suffering, [illness], and waning health affect your spirits? He Who “bare our sicknesses” (Mat 8:17) is your consolation now and will not leave you to suffer alone. He can either heal your malady with a word or make all your bed in sickness, by the supports of His grace and the discoveries of His love, such that you are willing to lie there patiently so long as it pleases Him...

Learn from the subject to take all your troubles to God at once. God wants you to make use of Him as the God of comfort. Why has He revealed Himself as such if not that you should go to Him immediately and without hesitation in every tribulation? They are sent for this purpose that you might “acquaint yourself with Him.” Many poor souls have made their first acquaintance with God in some deep, sore trial. It was not until God tore up all their earthly comforts by the root that they were led to see that they had been living without God.

But it is in the later stages of our religious life that we know more of the character of God, learn more of His loving heart and of His revealed Word as we fly to Him in our tribulations for the comfort only He can give. Oh, the blessedness of nearness to Him into which our trouble has brought us!...And we should not overlook the various channels through which God comforts us. He comforts us by His Word, its doctrines, promises, and precepts. He comforts us through the channel of prayer, drawing us to His mercy seat and bringing us into communion with Himself through Christ. What comfort flows through this channel! The moment we arise and give ourselves to prayer, we are conscious of a mental quietness and an indescribable soothing of heart. Prayer has unloosed the burden, dissolved the cloud, and proved an inlet of peace, joy, and hope, passing understanding and full of glory...Nor must we forget that God often comforts His people by putting to death all comfort outside of Himself. He said to His Church, “Behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her” (Hos 2:14). Is He bringing you, beloved, into the wilderness of separation, trouble, or solitude? You can be sure that it is to comfort you, to speak to your heart, and to reveal Himself to you as the “God of all comfort who comforteth us in all our tribulation.”

Thus, we learn that if we would have true comfort and consolation, we must run in faith to heaven for it. It is a treasure found in no earthly climate. It is a jewel of heaven, a flower of paradise, found in no mine or growing in no garden below. We can carve our own crosses, but we cannot make our own comfort. Seeking it from creatures, we only seek the living among the dead...

Has Jesus given you an excess of comfort? Go and pour its overflow in some stricken heart. Remember one purpose of God’s comforts: “That we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God” (2Co 1:4). What a high, holy, divine privilege—to go to some house of mourning, to some sick room, to some bed of suffering, to some believer in Jesus passing through adversity, or some child of light walking through darkness, and to strengthen and comfort them in God. With this as our mission, let us then be imitators of God, the “God of all comfort.”

Let me remind you what a fountain of comfort you have in the truth that this God of all comfort is your God. While you possess the streams, the streams lead you to their source, and all that is in God is yours. I will suppose your case one of extreme woe. I will imagine you tried in your families, afflicted in your circumstances, friendless and homeless. Yet, against all this, I will weigh the truth that the God of all comfort is your God. Knowing how infinitely this blessing outweighs all your destitution and sorrow, I would call on you to make the solitude through which you are traveling echo and reverberate with your shouts of joy and your songs of praise.

What if your home is desolate and your provisions are scanty? What if your heart is lonely and your body is diseased? What are these if God is your God, Christ is your Savior, and heaven is your home? Amid all your trials, sorrows, and discomforts, you have more cause to be happy and to sing than the brightest angel before the throne does! They stand in their own righteousness; you stand in the righteousness of God. They worship at a humble distance from God; you are brought near by the blood of Christ, enter into the holiest, and call Him “Father”!

Is it no comfort to be assured that Christ is yours, and that you are Christ’s? With such a Savior and Friend, with such a Patron and Intercessor in heaven as Jesus, how comforted should you be in all your tribulations! Jesus knows you; others may not. The world assails, the saints judge; friends misinterpret and foes condemn, just because they do not know or cannot understand you. Jesus knows you! Let this suffice. What a comfort that you can admit Him to every corner of your soul and to every secret of your heart with the feeling that He sees all, knows all, and understands all...

Oh, to live independently of the saints and above the world upon Jesus! This is true comfort. The moment you are brought fully to realize, “Christ knows me altogether: my personal infirmities, my secret sorrows, my domestic trials, my professional anxieties, all the workings of my inner life,” you are comforted as no friend on earth or angel in heaven could comfort you. What a Christ is ours! How we should love Him, trust Him, serve Him, and, if need be, suffer and die for Him.

THOUGHTS ON AFFLICTION

“His banner over me was love” (Song 2:4). The banner is an emblem of safety and protection—a sign of the presence of a host. Persons belonging to an army do encamp under their banner in security. So did the children of Israel in the wilderness: every tribe kept their camps under their own standard. It is also a token of success and victory (Psa 20:5). Christ has a banner for His saints, and that is love. All their protection is from His love, and they shall have all the protection His love can give them. This safeguards them from hell, death—all their enemies. Whatever presses on them, it must pass through the banner of the love of the Lord Jesus. They have, then, great spiritual safety.—John Owen

We live in such a fair and pleasant world—we are so surrounded with so much that is smiling and gay—that if we were not often obliged to taste of sickness and trial or disappointments, we should forget our heavenly home and pitch our tents over against this Sodom. Therefore it is that God’s people pass through great tribulations; therefore it is they are often called upon to suffer the sting of affliction and anxiety, or weep over the grave of those whom they have loved as their own soul. It is their Father’s hand that chastens them; it is thus He weans their affection from things below and fixes them on Himself; it is thus He trains them for eternity, and cuts the threads one by one that bind their wavering hearts to earth. No doubt such chastening is grievous for the time, but still it brings many a hidden grace to light, and cuts down many a secret seed of evil; and we shall see those who have suffered most shining among the brightest stars in the assembly of heaven. The purest gold is that which has been longest in the refiner’s furnace. The brightest diamond is often that which has required the most grinding and polishing. But our light affliction endureth but for a moment, and it worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory (2Co 4:17). The saints are men who have come out of great tribulation—they are never left to perish in it. The last night of weeping will soon be spent, the last wave of trouble will have rolled over us, and then we shall have a peace that passeth all understanding: we shall be at home for ever with the Lord.—J. C. Ryle

We have to be humbled. So [God] puts us in the fire of affliction, in the crucible of purification. He has only one object: to get rid of the dross and to refine the gold. But in our childishness we listen to the devil, and we grumble and complain. “Why is this happening to me? I am trying to be a good Christian; look at those other people.” I trust that we shall never speak in that way again, thus falling victim to the wiles of the devil. Cannot you see that in all this, God, as your Father, is manifesting His love to you and revealing His great and gracious and glorious purpose with respect to you? He intends to make you perfect, “without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing” (Eph 5:27). He has first to rid you of very much rubbish.—David Martyn Lloyd-Jones

God will have His saints experimentally acquainted with His truth and with Christ, Who is the truth. A mere theoretical Christian or a notional religionist is of little worth. We need a religion on which we can live holily and die happily. This can only be attained in a personal acquaintance with Christ and His Gospel. All God’s children are taught of God in the same school, the same truths, and by the same divine Teacher; and thus “he fashioneth their hearts alike” (Psa 33:15). If, then, this experimental acquaintance with the Bible is the result of affliction, welcome the discipline whose rod of correction blossoms into such golden fruit as this!—Octavius Winslow
